

AUSTRALIA'S UNIONS A DEATH OR A DIFFICULT BIRTH?

“The unions of the future will put the heart back into society just as they did a century ago”

Eminent commentator Jim Macken provides a colourful and compelling insight into the life force of the union movement through the savvy stories of Bill Luscombe, a passionate old unionist who reviews the past and dreams of the future of unions against the backdrop of Australia's colonial heritage.

What are the threats and strains to unionism this century? How can the Australian union movement respond the new challenges? Macken leads us through a first-rate exposition of the history of modern global cultural, economic and secular changes and their effects on the union movement, addressing the mistakes made by unions in responding to such change.

This book is a must read for all Australians who care about rights, and who hope for the future.

The Federation Press 1997

To purchase a copy of this book (cost $ 20.00 plus postage), contact the CFMEU on 9749-0400. Proceeds will go the 2006 CFMEU Your Rights at Work campaign.

www.cfmeu-construction-nsw.com

Authorised by Andrew Ferguson, State Secretary, CFMEU (Construction & General Division) NSW Branch
12 Railway Street, Lidcombe NSW 2141 Ph: (02) 9749 0400 Email: enquiries@nsw.cfmeu.asn.au

Tune in to Workers Radio Sydney 88.9FM Weekdays 5:30am – 9:00am